Seniors take over teachers' jobs for one day

Selecting subjects they wanted to teach, a hundred-thirty seniors registered with Mrs. Barbara Loy for faculty positions on Senior Teachers' day. Guidance and administrative tasks were also assigned to students.

Seniors prepared lessons in their chosen subjects, taught what they had planned, kept order in their classes and dined in the teachers' dining room at lunch time.

Principal Lawrence Gehring's post becomes the responsibility of Curtis Spiller, president of Mann's Student Council.

Lee Gates, at Mr. James Cougias' desk, confers with Sandi Nocum, who takes Mrs. Bernadette Fissinger's place counseling students.

Taking Mrs. Sara Nelson's place, Angel Valentin goes through a Spanish dialogue.

Angel Pluguez checks roll in Spanish II, before beginning the lesson he has prepared for the day.

Reviewing a lesson in American literature, Martha Espinoza teaches in Mrs. Ida Santaquilani's class as John Bunnell listens and waits his turn to be instructor.

Michaeline Smolinski teaches Mrs. Margaret DeLeurere's Latin class.

Dividing their team teaching assignment into discipline and instruction, Frank Wilderness promises one of his woodshop charges a swat as Dave Waddell grades their papers.

Senior Carol Henderson checks quiz papers for Miss Alice Halpin's Algebra class.

Taking Mrs. Gladys Stanford's place, Eddie Pagan assists student with reading.

Fourth of seniors combine employment, school

Approximately a fourth of Mann's graduates were employed in a variety of jobs during their high school years. Employment was sometimes weekend work only, or four to five hours after the school day.

Occasionally students were programmed for a half-day of class work, utilizing the remainder of the time for the job and school work.

Reasons for this strenuous schedule ranged from providing luxuries, usually cars to saving for post-highschool education or aiding parents in caring for families.

Grocery stores, gas stations and Gary's mills accounted for most of the employment among the students, but hospitals, retail stores and restaurants also used teenage help.

Paula Wilson, teen reporter for INFO, news weekly, gets instructions from her boss about next week's column.

Sally Ivankovich, employed at Lincoln's Carryout is taking an order for a steak sandwich.

David Waddell, working in the records department at Shoppers' Fair, holds up a few albums offered for sale.

Carol Henderson, employed at Methodist Hospital, is very busy working at the switchboard.

Debbie Wilson, employed at Lincoln's Carryout, takes an order for a submarine.

David Fogler looks tired as he returns several pairs of shoes to stock shelves at Lytton's where he works.

Ability groups phased out by administration

Accelerated sections, long part of the English schedule at Mann, disappeared from all grade levels except senior this year. Special classes were retained.

Seniors taking English IV read Greek literature, some of Shakespeare's works such as HAMLET, writings of black authors, studied grammar, and wrote compositions and term papers. Miss Eleanor Monnix was in command of five classes.

Janis Mitchell and Dorothy Taylor become deeply involved in Bob Orlich's discussion of the novel, SIDHARTHA, which they have just finished in Miss Monnix' English class.

Preparing to write an impromptu composition, this English class concentrates on finding a topic.

Seniors Jurutha Fowlkes and Cheryl Heris scan an anthology containing a variety of modern poetry.

Ophelia, played by Faith Spiller, returns gifts she has received from Hamlet (Tyronne Davis).

Mr. Rogers and Mr. Werner prepare the registration forms for the students.

Alvin Smith fills several registration forms. In the background Debbie Wilson asks a question.

For the first time in history eighteen-year-olds were able to vote in Indiana in national elections. Mann seniors were registered in their Government and Economics classes. Witnesses for the seniors were Mr. Dwayne Rogers and Mr. David Werner, instructors in these subjects.

During this time senior Government classes studied the purpose of voting and characteristics a candidate running for a office should have. It was hoped that these analyses might be helpful to the new voters.

Eighteen-year-olds set to vote in social studies

Mrs. Faye Ison talks to her Government class about eighteen-year-old voting, just before the students are able to register to vote.

Physics department acquires new textbooks

New this year in the Science department was the set of books used by physics classes. Published by Harvard University, the collection consisted of six readers containing essays and fiction on scientific topics, a text and a laboratory manual. Students reacted to them favorably.

Left: Instead of one text, a shelf of books provides Physics reading.

Using marbles, John Serwatka, Carl Moore and Alan Reuter study molecular density.

Laws of gravity studied by science classes

Beginning with demonstrations of laws of gravitation, students elected phases of science to study.

Working individually, Dave Fogler and Bob Orlich operated analog and digital computers. Rubin Maldonado and Larry Rosen diagrammed crystals. Gwen McDaniel fabricated molecular models of organic compounds.

Seminar-fashion, Mr. George Sanidas instructs advanced science students.

Math department chops accelerated program

Lacking one teacher, the math department shortened the accelerated program. Students from Math Ix transferred to Algebra I or Algebra II; Math IIx students went into geometry classes; Math IIIx, Math IV and Math IVx were combined into a class of eighteen.

(Left) Unit circles are essential to Miss Halpin in explaining trig functions to her class.

Discussion, readings used in psychology

Stressing learning by discussion and current readings, junior and senior students took a semester of psychology with Mr. David Werner. Class members experimented in extrasensory perception, trial and error responses, and selective forgetting. In lighter vein hypnosis and working of the Ouija board were observed.

Paula Wilson and Alice Lopez take in everything being said about trial and error.

Students choose from four foreign languages

Maria Sepulveda tacks up some Spanish travel posters, one of many activities her Spanish II class has done through the school year.

Miss Jones listens on as members of her French class read from their books.

Part of Mrs. DeLeurere's class gathers around her to read one of their lessons. Dividing the students into different sections allows advanced students to progress faster.

Miss Bopp, German teacher, checks some homework papers she has assigned her students that day.

Modern foreign language classes, French, German and Spanish, with fewer students enrolled, operated on an individualized instruction basis.

First-year students exchanged dialogues. During second year grammar was introduced; third- and fourth-year students read and translated books.

Miss Georgia Bopp taught German and French; Mrs. Margaret DeLeurere taught Latin; Miss Sally Jones taught French; and Mrs. Connie Barnes, Mrs. Sara Nelson and Mrs. Melva Zabarte taught Spanish.

Fine Arts students search out new methods to express ideas

Mann's fine arts classes, which included art, speech and music, provided students with valuable experiences in expression. Students chose subjects with which they found they were most at ease.

Enrolled in graphic arts, pupils employed themselves drawing with pencil, ink or various types of color paints.

Speech classes practiced expressing thoughts through dialog, debate or coping with controversy. Many class members fought the old enemy, stage fright; some conquered. Vocal students worked at breath control, voice production and reading scores.

Ann Bynum serves as live model for everyone in Art 1 to sketch.

Marilyn Vantrece is aided in her Art 1 sketch by ideas from Mrs. Shirley Shaevel.

Working at an easel, Victor Lopez sketches a still life for later painting.

Singing the finale of the memorial program honoring Dr. Martin Luther King, Drama Club members join hands during the number to symbolize the dream of Dr. King's life for his people.

Business students enjoy new typing equipment

Business students enjoyed three new typewriters that made front row choice seats in typing class. First- and second-year typist tried their skills on the new machines.

Bookkeeping, Business Law, Typing, General Business, Shorthand, Clerical Practice and the Co-Op program were offered to students who planned to have majors in business when they have graduated.

Seniors learn to produce as much as possible during the five-minute timed writing in Typing II class.

Filing, calculating and operating adding machines keep clerical students too busy for clock-watching.

First year typing students spend their hour practice-typing their conditioning exercises.

Coöp students scan job vista in city offices

Career day, October 20, introduced twenty Mann office practice students to daily business operations at Holiday Inn, Credit Bureau, the Police Station and the Bank of Indiana.

After touring the businesses, girls from six public schools lunched together as guests of Holiday Inn and continued their inspection of occupations available during the afternoon.

Coöp students Marilyn Malave, Janice Mitchell and Geraldine Guy close machines before going to their daily jobs.

Coöp officers are Geraldine Guy, treasurer; Janice Mitchell, president; Angie Mariani, secretary.

Angie Mariani, employed at Penny's as a clerk, rings up a sale.

Council runs examination of food markups

Led by Curtis Spiller, Student Council organized a student exchange with Merrillville, entertained their parents at dinner and studied markup on food and clothing similarly to "Nader's Raiders".

Hoping to demonstrate and encourage school pride, the group prepared an auditorium program aired during March. Representatives on Inter-city student council were Pam Luna, Ruth Miner and Spiller.

Book protectors showing the Mann building were sold. Mrs. Daisy Page was council advisor.

As president, Curtis Spiller conducts a weekly meeting, Michalene Smolinski take minutes of the session while Manervie Smith looks on.

Senior Honor Society inducts; rite staged for members only

Mr. Harris congratulates Roselyn Burleigh as Mr. Gehring watches.

At a meeting in the library for members only instead of the auditorium ceremony, Honor Society inducted seven members. Antoinette Bell, Rosclyn Burleigh, David Fogler, Pamela Luna, Michaeline Smolinski, Faith Spiller and Dorothy Taylor were added to the roll. Current members were Rosemary DeLeon, Carol Henderson, Rubin Maldonado, Gladys Martinez, Robert Orlich, Larry Rosen, Curtis Spiller and Paula Wilson.

Troopers stomp Mann's homecoming, 44-6

Excitement and hope arose with Paul Ramos' 20-yard pass to Rodney Williams who made good, delivering the ball to the post. But Wirt Troopers prevailed, stomping Mann 44-6 in the Homecoming contest.

Half-time ceremonies featured the crowning of Beverly Howard as Homecoming Queen. Escorted by Donnell Chandler, Beverly's court consisted of Cynthia Brown, Rosemary DeLeon and Paula Griffin. All the girls were presented with watches as gifts by Booster Club.

Drivers in homecoming caravan line up their decorated cars for the brief trip to Wirt's field.

Hi—Y chooses Le Chambre Gazebo

Under vari-colored chandelier ornaments representing "Le Chambre Gazebo," eighty couples danced to recorded music at Sweethearts' Ball. Held at the Holiday Inn at Portage, the dance featured a chicken dinner and crowning of Cheryl Harris as queen. Hi-Y hosts presented Cheryl and her court with flowers and mementos appropriate to the occasion.

Chaperoning the event were Mrs. Barbara Loy, Mr. James Ricard, and Mr. Harvey Clay, Mr. Duane Rogers, and Mr. Joshua Fisher, sponsors of the organization.

Myron Virginia and his date and Coralyn Flanders and James Hazelett wait to be seated.

Sherri Campbell, first runner-up; Cheryl Harris, Hi-Y queen; Debbie Gearing, second runner-up, and Doris Brewer, third runner-up.

Inexperience bombs record for Horsemen

Ending the season on the downswing to the tune of 0-10, the fighting Horsemen finished in the cellar of the Northwest Conference.

Returning this year from last year's "Big Red Machine" were co captains Robert Rodriguez and James Hazelett. Other starters were Vince Lopez, Ken Exom, and Fred Gates.

Senior Paul Ramos listens to Coach Bob Webb, as he instructs him on the next play. Coach Dan Kachaturroff watches the game from the sidelines.

Rodriguez, B. Orlich, H. Terrell, S. Katic, C. Spiller, B. Malavozos, R. Harris, M. Edger, J. White, Coach Bob Webb. Third row: A. Rueter, manager; E. Gates, K. Exom, W. Kennedy, C. Snowden, R. Williams, M. Clark, J. Beric, V. Lopez, B. Matsey, S. Holmar, L. Feliciano, K. Jolly.

Netters capture third place in city tournament

Under a new coach, Mr. Gary Meyer, the Horace Mann tennis team ended the season with a 4-5 record. The netters placed third in the city-wide tournament with three individuals placing third. They were John Serwatka, Larry Rosen and David Fogler.

Undaunted, Alfie Garcia hussles to get the ball.

Displaying his agility, Captain John Serwatka backhands the ball in a tough tennis match.

Exciting, scoreless season frustrates Mann's harriers

Replacing Coach Jack Hobbs, Coach Elbert Carnahan led the cross country team to a sixth place in the city tournament. Guiding the team through a winless but instructive season was Captain Porfirio Ramos.

Cagers make slack record: win one game

Horace Mann's basketball team, trained by Coach Luis Thomas, formerly at Pulaski, picked up but little speed after a slow start. Inexperienced players and problems of team work caused an up-setting season with a record of one victory to eighteen losses.

Their sole triumph came when the Horsemen traveled out of state to Illinois to win a stunning victory over Momence. Score of the contest was 92-61.

Carlos Smith replaces Marvin Smith for the first part of the season.

David Williams and Keith Bloonfield wait for the bouncing ball to come down.

Carlos Smith, Larry Webb and Mouric Davis crowd around the basket to see who will end up with it.

Coach Luis Thomas watches his team from the side line, hoping for the best.

Swimmers lose first city title in four years

Swimming better in individual events than in team competition, the mermen failed to score over their opponents in any of ten group events. Lane competitors making unblemished records at season's end were: Porfirio Ramos, 400-yard freestyle; John Serwatka, 100-yard freestyle; Angel Trinidad, 100-yard butterfly stroke.

Tournament competition showed the Horsemen in second slot, where they needed a first to share the city championship.

Coach Carnahan began the training season, turning the team over to Coach Ector because of illness.

Senior John Serwatka finishes the last lap of the five-hundred-yard medley during the city meet.

Captain Faustino Rodriguez swims the one-hundred yard butterfly stroke which put Horace Mann in second place in the Gary high school swimming meet.

During a home meet against Gary Roosevelt, John Colon jumps off the diving board with the hope of getting the maximum five points and a first place.

Varsity swimming members: Faustino Rodriguez, John Colon, Coach John Ector, John Serwatka and Porfirio Ramos.

Two Mann grapplers capture first in city

Mann's Wrestlers had a disappointing season although they had two city champions. Placing first in the city meet were Paul Ramos and Tony Cartagena; Emil Mariani, second; Hyrom Ramos, third. In sectionals Paul Ramos and Alfie Garcia placed second while Emil Mariani and Tony Caratagena placed third.

Mann's mile relay team sets new school record in 3:25.2

Cindermen had a tough but rewarding season. Lee Gates, captain, was successful in the 100-yd. dash and 220-yd. dash, going down state. He ran a :09.5 in the 100 yd. dash for a second best time in state. He also ran with Rodney Williams, Jim Evans and Dave Gullett in the mile relay which set a school record in a time of 3:25.2. For the third straight year, the 440-yd. relay team won first place at the Hammond Clark Relays. Track was coached by Bob Webb and Louis Thomas.

Mann's baseball players have winless season

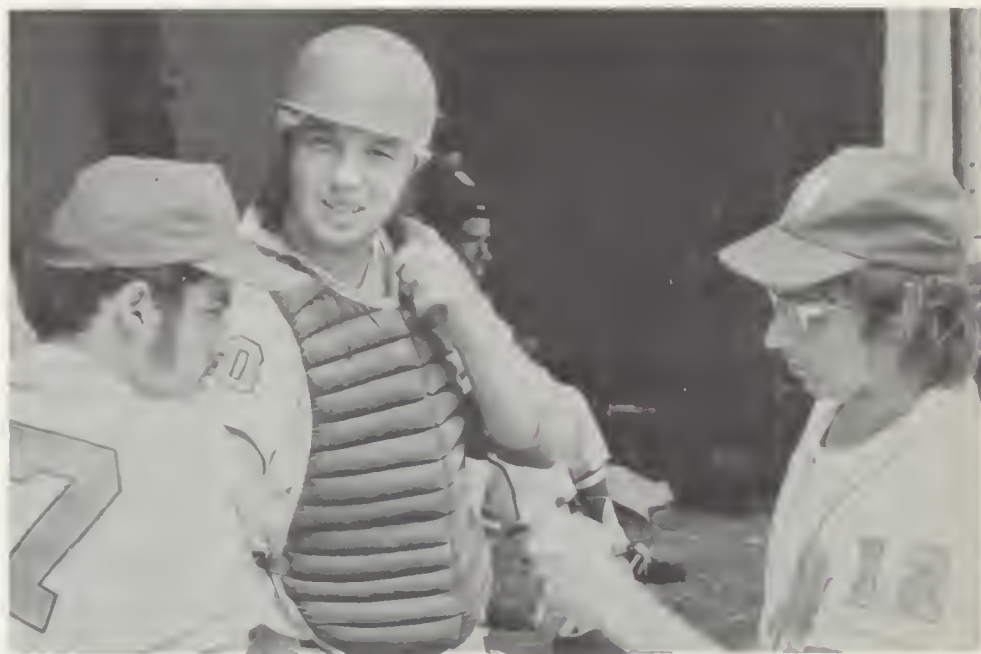

Mann's baseball team, coached by Mr. John Ector, played only two games of a twenty-game schedule because of the teachers' strike. In the first contest, the nine was overwhelmed by West Side and they went down in defeat with the final score of West Side 5 Mann 2.

Although committing many errors, East Gary held Mann to eight runs, defeating the diamondmen 10-8.

Juniors select A Time for Us as prom theme

Dancing to the music of Billy Foster, 110 couples attended the Junior Prom at Marquette Park Pavilion June 7. "A Time For Us" was the theme of the party. Mementos given to guests with bids were tiny hour glasses.

Jennifer Jones took charge of tickets, bids, band and post-prom plans. Ruth Miner arranged for chaperones and guest-book. Carleen Smith directed the decorations committee and William Wallace secured a photographer. Publicity campaign manager was Ronald Peck.

Mrs. Inez Harris and Mr. Michael Kozubal, junior class sponsors, served as faculty advisors.

Belinda Lopez and Martha Espinoza, with their dates, take turns photographing each other.

Boys become members of girls' Booster Club

For the first time in Booster Club's existence boys were admitted to membership.

Varied money-making projects, bake sales, homecoming mums, booster pins and dances were held by the club. A candy sale, which made possible the purchase of new cheerleader uniforms for varsity and reserve squads, proved popular. Club members appeared in new sweaters with white emblems for which they raised funds.

Booster Club officers were Cheryl Harris, president; Paula Wilson, vice-president, Becky Reuter, secretary, and Anita Bell, treasurer. Miss Jacqueline Dozier and Miss Benja Waugh served as sponsors.

Foreign language clubs' enrollments decline

President of Latin Club, Michaleen Smolinski conducts a meeting as Mrs. DeLeurere looks on.

Senior French Club members Antoinette Bell, six-year French student, and Al Carey, three-year French student.

German Club members: Doreen Frymire, Crystal Harvey, Sally Ivankovich, Donna Rimmer, Norma Arechiga.

German, Latin, French and Spanish Club had very small enrollments. Seniors held the offices of president and vice-president. The sponsors for the clubs were Miss Georgia Bopp, German; Miss Sally Jones, French; Mrs. Margaret De Leurere, Latin; and Mrs. Melva Zabarte, Spanish.

German Club bought club sweaters for their members, earning the funds by having bake sales. The members also attended the National German Club convention.

Latin Club enslaved their freshmen members, selling them at auctions and freeing them at SATURNALIA.

Spanish Club held their annual friendship day when students and teachers bought red carnations for their friends. They also held a number of bake sales. The money from the bake sales and carnations was used for their trip to Adventure Land, amusement park in Chicago.

Senior Hi—Y men form underclassmen's club

HI-Y hosted the annual Sweethearts' Ball this year at the Holiday Inn in Portage. Cheryl Harris was Sweetheart Ball Queen, Sherri Campbell first runner-up, Debbie Gearing second runner-up, and third runner-up, Doris Brewer.

As athletes, members competed in basketball with the men teachers, the faculty winning. The organization entertained at a number of sock hops and held a hot pants contest.

President was Rodney Myers, vice president, Lee Gates. The sponsors were Mr. Harvey Clay and Mr. Dwayne Rogers.

Senior HI-Y set up a junior HI-Y for underclassmen.

Girl athletes' group shapes up in various competitive sports

Believing in exercise as a way to attaining sound bodies, members of Girls' Athletic Association reported to gym or pool weekly for competitive sports. Members organized teams headed by captains for tourney competition.

Games of wallball, basketball, volleyball and swimming competition made the girls' gym and pool noisy places after school as team struggled with team for status of victor.

Miss Arlene Heward was faculty director of the group.

Johnetta Archie watches her teammate returning the ball to the opposition.

Cheerleaders collect money for new attire

Keeping enthusiasm high at football and basketball games, the Horace Mann cheerleaders were an inspiring team. The girls earned money having bake sales and car washes, selling candy and holding dances in the gym to raise sufficient funds to buy new uniforms for the squad.

Sponsors Miss Jackie Dozier and Miss Benja Waugh helped the girls stay in condition for the season.

Kings and Queens Dance held at Gary YMCA

Horace Mann's 1972 Kings and Queens dance was held at the YMCA for the first time. About fifty couples attended the dressy-casual dance. Kings and Queens were voted on during senior English classes. After the nominations, there was a final vote. Booster Club tallied the votes.

Elected Miss HMS, Paula Wilson poses with Lee Gates, Mr. HMS by popular vote.

Pam Luna and James Hazelett are students' choice as most feminine and most masculine.

Diana Bailey and Bob Rodriguez are selected as the most athletic couple at Mann.

Pat Taylor's eyes appeal to the seniors as the most beautiful in the class.

Class of '72 graduates at Gary Career Center

At Commencement ceremonies June 14, Mann graduated a class of 221 students. Rites were held at Gary Career Center.

Cynthia Brown, senior class president, led guests and graduates in prayer. Carol Henderson, valedictorian, spoke on the topic "No Gifts from Chance." Salutatorian Robert Orlich's talk was entitled "Between Two Views."

Mr. Lawrence Gehring, principal, presented the class for the awarding of diplomas and Dr. Haron Battle representing the public school administration congratulated graduates on their achievement. Mr. Fredrick Ford, member of the board of school trustees, awarded the diplomas.

Baccalaureate services were held Sunday, June 11, at Holy Angels Cathedral. The sermon was given by the Reverend Donald Parson.

Seniors begin frosh year under Maldonado

Led by Rubin Maldonado with vice president, Janet Pole; secretary, Rose Morillion and treasurer, Pam Luna, the class as freshmen had many adjustments to make in their first year of high school. Besides becoming accustomed to a new academic atmosphere, classmates found numerous extracurricular activities to occupy them.

Tom Moore, Paul Ramos, and Greg Spencer as freshmen gridders, help tie the Homecoming against Emerson 13-13.

Girls competing for the coveted title of Frosh Homecoming queen were Alice Lopez, Nancy Renta, Luz Torres, and Freida Hicks, who reigned. Rose Morillon won the bid to rule over the freshmen with two kings, Bob Orlich and Paul Ramos, who tied as winners.

With bake sales at Buy Low and studying now and then the class concluded an active year.

Picking up three hundred new class members transferred in from Froebel, the sophomore early began activities leading to a financially-sound Prom, a responsibility of their junior year. Elected sophomore officers were Sheila Dyer, president; Bruce Pillar, vice president; Pam Hileman, secretary; and Janice Mitchell, treasurer.

As juniors Pat Taylor and Cheryl Mays participated in Y-CHICAS; Cheryl Harris and Toni Bell labored in Booster club. Millie and Sally Ivankovich and Debby Wilson worked to make Turn-about a success for Girls' club. Rodney Myers, Malcolm Varnado and Greg Hunt signed up early as members of newly chartered Hi-Y. Millie Ivankovich, Jerry Kaster, Pam Luna, Rubin Maldonado, Larry Rosen, and John Serwatka spent last hour on yearbook staff. Paula Wilson wrote for the school newspaper, MANN-U-SCRIPT.

Climaxing the year, the juniors offered their prom, ORIENTAL AND JADE, staged at Marquette Park Pavillion with post-prom activities at San Remo's restaurant.

Curtis Spiller presided over the class as juniors with Pam Luna, secretary and Gwen McDaniels, treasurer.

As seniors, the group came up with approximately two hundred twenty-three students prepared for graduation on June 14, 1972. Cynthia Brown led the class; Diana Bailey was vice president; Pam Luna, secretary and Gwen McDaniels, treasurer.

Events of the year were Hi-Y's Sweethearts' Ball, Homecoming activities, the Kings' and Queens' dance and the Prom. It was the year the MANN-U-SCRIPT died and the MANNUAL became a smaller senior edition instead of covering the school's four classes. But it was the year of Commencement, and the final graduation march. This is the story . . . but "We've only just begun!"

Small yearbook staff produces senior edition

Failing to secure school support for their publication even though sales continued into December, the staff set aside the MANNUAL for the year, publishing a curtailed edition of less than half customary length, featuring only the graduating class. Each senior agreed to purchase a copy, thus making the book possible.

A staff of ten students put their efforts into BEGINNINGS. Alfie Jackson left the staff at mid-term for a new school. Juan Garcia and Otto Miller, who attended summer school for photography at Indiana State, provided a good selection of pictures. Seniors were photographed by Root photographers.

Millie Ivankovich, Pam Luna and John Serwatka were two-year veterans. Other staff members were Sally Ivankovich, Debbie Wilson, Emil Mariani, and Sheri Rhines.

Sally Ivankovich writes copy for her foreign language page while Millie Ivankovich is busy thinking of a headline.

After finishing the pages for the March deadline, BEGINNINGS staff members enjoy the newly-fallen snow.
